Emma Parker, returns from university to her small town home while awaiting the results of her recent bar exam. She is about to become an attorney in her mother's successful practice, but quickly sets the law (and her responsibilities to her mother's firm) aside in order to save the town's beloved ice-sculpting competition.

As she rediscovers the town where she grew up, Emma meets Nick Claiborne, a local tree farmer, and their initial attraction turns sour when he doesn't support her desire to save the ice sculpture competition. What Emma doesn't know is Nick is an ice sculptor who has suppressed his love of the art due to a broken heart.

After raising a small fortune in just a few days, Emma revives the competition; finds a new ice-sculpting partner in Nick Claiborne; a new love of art and ice sculpting to replace the law in her future; and the love of her life.
