Lisa and Brian Styles and their teenage daughter Sarah return home from a blissful family vacation to discover that a criminal family has taken over their home and identities. Caught off guard, the Styles are held hostage and forced to drain Lisa's business account, filled with a large sum of her client's money. Defeated, the family is led into the woods to be killed, but escape after a harrowing chase. Upon an initial investigation, the police are unable to come up with any believable leads and suspect that the Styles are scheming to steal the money from Lisa's client. Traumatized, and now criminal suspects, the Styles must take justice into their own hands, track down the criminal family, and restore their lives back to normal.
