Synopsis

Recent college grad, Allie Karras, takes a trip with her father, George, to visit her ailing grandmother in their family's homeland of Athens, Greece. They're taken by surprise when they find George's estranged brother Theo is also there. There's no love lost between the two brothers and a heated argument erupts over past transgressions involving a woman named Iris. That night, Allie finds her father dead. Police suspect natural causes, but Allie is convinced he was murdered. Allie's mother, Catherine, flies to Athens to comfort Allie and help settle affairs. Catherine and Allie have a strained relationship because she feels Allie took her father's side during their contentious divorce, but when Allie reveals that she suspects Theo killed her father, Catherine and Allie must work together – with the help of a handsome local boy, Andreas – to bring Theo to justice. They're soon ensnared in a deadly game of cat and mouse where they've become targets themselves. When George's body mysteriously disappears, Allie and Catherine must question everything they thought they knew about George as his secret past, and the people from it, come to light with deadly intentions.
